NO REASON FOR IT

When Norway Citizens Show a Way.

There can be no reason why any reader of this who suffers the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the pains and dangers of kidney ails will fail to heed the words of a neighbor who has found relief. Read what a Norway citizen says:

S. C. Foster, barber, Main St., Norway, says: "I was troubled by kidney complaint some years ago and I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Stone's Drug Store. A couple of boxes gave me relief."

Three years later Mr. Foster said: "I use Doan's Kidney Pills now and then and they keep my kidneys in excellent condition."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Foster had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

HEBRON ACADEMY

The program for class day exercises, Tuesday, June 20:

Music: Prayer by Chaplain. Harold Dunmore Crosby
Class History: Florence Ina Sawyer
Music: Donald Hazeltine Curtis
Address to Undergraduates: Stanton Howe Woodman

Class Prophecy: Albertina Gordon Ridley, Allan William Hoy
Presentation of Gifts: Almeda Ramon Alvarez
Singing Class Ode: Florence Ina Sawyer

The ode was by Ava Marie Weymouth and sang to the tune of "Carry me back to Old Virginia."

CLASS ODE
Ring out our praises thro' the woodland,
Let vale and mountain echo to our loyal call.
Forever will the charms of Hebron, old Hebron,
The bridge and campus be dear to hearts of all.

All of the trials we've conquered in studies,
Into a bright golden future we shall weave,
No place on earth do we love more devoutly
Than dear old Hebron, the school that we must leave.

Chorus
Dear, grand old Hebron, how we love thee!
Thou' art no longer linger in thy dear old halls;
Hallowed will be all the thots that surround thee,
Thou' we must now leave thy ivy-covered walls.

But note class of nineteen sixteen
Comes to the parting of its ways at old Hebron,
Fond memories throng to our hearts at the parting,
Revived by scenes that confront us here today.

To friends we're leaving we now bid farewell
As we now go out upon life's broader field;
Thou' old Hebron we'll never leave forever
Loyal hearts to our Alma Mater we will yield.

Program for commencement exercises, Wednesday, June 21:

Great Hay Crop

Look here, we have two places just listed that have crops all in and growing that the owners are anxious to sell before haying. One place only 3-1-2 miles out on good road, a genuine one-man farm, cuts 30-35 tons hay, will carry 10 head and team. Corn, potatoes and all crops included at $2,500.00. Good set of buildings.

Stock and Timber Farm at $6,500.00

This is a rare bargain, as the hay alone will be worth nearly half enough to pay for the farm. 30,000 ft. of Pine timber, 250 trees in orchard. Let us show you these places before buying elsewhere. Cottage house right here in town at a bargain. All inquiries gladly looked after.

GROCEER JOHNSON'S NEW SIGN

What does it mean?
It means that Mr. Johnson carries Socony Kerosene Oil and he wants everybody to know it.

Why?
Because Socony Kerosene is the safest and best kerosene on the market. Inexpensive, too, compared to the present price of coal. The New Perfection Oil Cook Stove cooks three meals a day for a family of six at an average fuel cost of six cents.

The New Perfection is economical and efficient, because the long blue chimney burner converts every drop of oil into clear, intense heat. The 1916 models have the new patented reversible glass reservoir and many other improvements. Sold in 1, 2, 3 and 4-burner sizes (by hardware, furniture and general stores) everywhere.

PARIS HILL

Chandler Garland.

Chandler Garland, formerly of Paris and well known in Oxford County, died at his home in Boston, Monday, June 12, at the age of 65 years. Although he had been in poor health for three years and failed rapidly the past winter, he bore his suffering with great fortitude and was conscientious to the end.

Mr. Garland was born in Paris, the son of the late John L. and Mary (Rawson) Garland. He was engaged in trade on Paris Hill, and was constable and collector, deputy sheriff and jailer of Oxford County.

He married Flora E. Whittemore of Paris and to this union were born three children, Minnie, wife of Geo. Saunders of Boston, Alice, who died a few years ago and Mabel, who died in infancy.

About nineteen years ago Mr. Garland with his family moved to Boston, where he was engaged in the real estate business. In 1901 he united with the Tremont Temple Baptist church in Boston, and was chosen as one of the deacons of the church, which office he held at the time of his death. He was a member of Mt. Meia Lodge of Odd Fellows at South Paris, which order he joined about thirty-nine years ago.

He was a man of sterling character and was upright in all his dealings. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Geo. Saunders, three grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Charles Whitman of Mechanic Falls.

The funeral was held at his late home in Boston, Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock and was attended by his pastor, Rev. Courtland Myers, D. D. of Tremont Temple. Six of the deacons of the church were the bearers. The floral offerings were many and beautiful and showed the respect in which he was held in the community.

The remains were taken to South Paris, Friday and interred in the family lot in Riverside cemetery. The county officers with whom he was associated for several years and the Odd Fellows, escorted the remains to the cemetery where they gave the burial service. Prayer was offered by Rev. G. W. F. Hill of Paris.

Mrs. Flora E. Garland, Mrs. Minnie Saunders and three children, who have been at Lewiston, returned to Boston, Tuesday.

Mrs. H. R. Hubbard and Etta Hollis were in Portland, Friday. Alonzo Pomeroy and G. W. Cole attended the G. A. R. Encampment at Portland and Auburn last week.

THE REPUBLICAN

NATIONAL CONVENTION

At Chicago, June 7-11, '16.

By C. F. WHITMAN

Having been interested in politics since eight years ago, when I began reading Horace Greeley's York Tribune, Wm. Lloyd Garrison's Liberator and Charles Sumner's speeches for Freedom in Kansas, I have always felt a desire to attend one national convention. The circumstances were such that I could do so this year and I went as a "free lance."

Not only did I wish to see and hear, how things were managed in a convention gathered together for the purpose of selecting candidates for President and Vice-President, but to interview men of all shades of opinion and factions of the opposition to the party in power and ascertain how political currents were setting in and the strength of candidates and influences that will be more or less felt in the coming campaign.

Therefore no opportunity was lost in going, to ascertain the opinion of men, principally who were not politicians, as to the availability of certain candidates for the nomination, coming before the convention. Such were talked with on the trains, in railroad stations, on the Fall River boat, at Baltimore and Chicago.

There was a surprising unanimity of sentiment for Judge Charles E. Hughes. Among these was a Methodist clergyman from Illinois, whom I met at Boston. He had attended the great conference in New York and came east to see the historic places of interest and visit Plymouth. He was very decided in his opinions on the question which was shared by nearly all he talked with. I found too among the courteous supporters of the administration in Baltimore that they regarded Judge Hughes as far and away the strongest man their opponents could put in the field. Indeed they feared no other candidate at the general election.

On the train to Chicago I got acquainted with several delegates to the conventions, and among them was a Congressman from Idaho, a close friend of Senator Wm. E. Borah. He said the sentiment all through the Rocky Mountain region was for the nomination of Hughes and while they hoped that Borah might be agreed upon by the two conventions, it was not really expected and Hughes' selection was regarded as almost certain.

We talked on the matter of preparedness and it was suggested that the Philippine Islands were our greatest weakness. We could not adequately defend them with such a climate by any army we could hastily raise and our navy was not what it should be for such a purpose, and the hope was expressed that the U. S. might dispose of them to Great Britain, a Christian nation, for some of its West Indian possessions. It was said this very thing was being considered at Washington and would take shape after the war closed and the Republicans were in power. It would be an eternal disgrace to abandon them to be seized by some semi-barbarous nation, or to sell them to a nation which would exploit them.

In this connection it may be stated that a bright young Kentuckian said that his state would be Democratic this year on the preparedness issue. His people he said were afraid of it, and were for peace methods. Another from South Dakota said: "You fellows on the sea are retty long gun to reach them."

A Mr. Thompson from Delaware was a Progressive. He hoped for the nomination of Roosevelt, but would be satisfied with Hughes. He was a member of the grange and was an agent for buying and selling coal, and had travelled extensively through the Alleghany and Blue Ridge regions. Mr. Thompson gave me an excellent account of the politics of the Delaware state and said it was safely Republican this year.

I met a part of the Maine men at their room in the Congress Annex Hotel on Tuesday afternoon, but some had not arrived. We talked the situation over. I told them with some animation what I had learned about the Hughes sentiment, and with considerable enthusiasm pictured if he was nominated, the brilliant campaign in Maine that could be made and the courage it would give the whole country when the news of our great victory should be sent over the wires on the morning after the election.

"I like your youthful enthusiasm," said Hon. W. W. Thomas of Portland, who had returned with his family from Sweden. He stated, which is not generally known I think, that he had always maintained a voting residence in our beautiful city by the sea.

Later I saw Mr. Arthur G. Staples of the Lewiston Journal and Hon. Harold M. Sewall of Bath at their room in the same hotel. I presume the former had been discovered during the convention. It was different with Mr. Sewall. I had campaigned with him and had taken a great liking to him, and should have been pleased to have seen him win a seat in Congress two years ago.

He served with great ability. While free-himself from the dust which had accumulated during his ride, on the occasion of how the Maine delegation stood, he launched into a stream of oratory. In substance among other things, he said: "I was beaten for Congress two years ago by Colonel Roosevelt. I don't think he will be nominated and I fear could not be elected if he was, but I would rather see him nominated even if we went down to defeat. This was not quite prepared for this, but was not much surprised for I had often heard it said that Mr. Sewall with all his good qualities, was not a practical politician. There are very few public men who fear putting up with a ticket just to be knocked down, especially when it is possible to select a winner. This was learned from Horace Greeley many years ago."

The availability of a man is just as essential in the selection of a candidate as commanding genius and brilliant qualities. This was well illustrated when Webster and Clay were set aside in 1840 and 1848, and Gen. Wm. H. Harrison and Gen. Zachary Taylor nominated and elected, and also when Wm. H. Seward was beaten in the convention by Abraham Lincoln. Then the delegates from the doubtful states were canvassed to find out who could best carry their states. The answer was Abraham Lincoln, and he was nominated and elected.

The writer has reason to believe that this question was considered at Chicago. In the matter of availability, Cummins, Sherman, Root, Weeks and Chas. E. LaFollette could not stand this test and Wm. Fairbanks of Indiana, who was out of the race from the very start, served as Vice President, received a large

The Fairbanks men were for the second majority of the votes cast and was nominated on the ticket and landed it. The inated.

Hughes men really wanted Burton, but I think Governor Hiram Johnson of California had there been any organized efforts made for that purpose and the result. Indeed their own cause drifted, and the nomination was brought about by the cool judgment of the delegates and the influences surrounding the convention favored the nomination of Judge Hughes as a sure win, but only the delegates of one state, Oregon, were instructed to vote for him.

Second thought, the cool judgment of the delegates and the influences surrounding the convention favored the nomination of Judge Hughes as a sure win, but only the delegates of one state, Oregon, were instructed to vote for him. Second, the "Old Guard" had a well defined purpose. A Sherman delegate let the cat out of the bag. "It won't work," he was told. "Your plan if carried out, will imperil the September election in Maine and unless we can have the right man it goes Democratic and Wilson will be elected."

"Do you think so?" "I have no doubt about it," was the answer. "With Hughes we will win a victory in Maine that will show how the country is going."

The plan was this: Harding was selected to be temporary chairman and gave the keynote address. His speech failed how he didn't seem to strike the right chord in the convention.

There was little or no enthusiasm in any of the favorite movements except what was manufactured. That for Sherman of Illinois was all made to order. The "Old Guard" had the votes, it was said, and could not be expected to carry out their plans. Why did they not at first perhaps, but during the last two days of the convention it is doubtful if they could have held their followers together, and there was a general feeling could lay hands on moved out of their seats and began marching around the hall. Other delegations followed. I increasing enthusiasm for Roosevelt, and looked for the men from Maine to rise and join the procession, but they did not stir. A lady back of me, who had pinned up a badge on my coat, as she had been selected. This enthusiasm for the whole done to those of several others, said: "Where is your Maine delegation?" I pretended not to hear her, nevertheless I was chagrined and disappointed both by the effect of the demonstrations of the men from Maine and by the fact that they did not stir.

A lady back of me, who had pinned up a badge on my coat, as she had been selected. This enthusiasm for the whole done to those of several others, said: "Where is your Maine delegation?" I pretended not to hear her, nevertheless I was chagrined and disappointed both by the effect of the demonstrations of the men from Maine and by the fact that they did not stir.

It was everywhere and especially among the common people. "We want Teddy," we want Teddy," was the burden of their song. I was informed that the men's association had been formed to advocate his nomination. The writer talked with a man born in the South, who had relatives and interests on the Mexican border. He had never voted the Republican ticket. Said he: "We want a man at the crisis whose views are known and who will take a firm stand for the protection of the lives and property of American citizens the world over, as the Democratic platform of 1912 called for, but which has not been done. That man is Roosevelt. If he is nominated, he will carry every state bordering on Mexico."

Hiram Ricker was seen at the hotel on the second day of the convention. He was on his way home from Denver Colorado, where he had gone to see his son. The Maine men had been supplied by him with Poland Spring water. I had a drink of the pure liquid, (they had nothing else), in the room of Mr. Sewall and Mr. Staples, the best drink I had on my whole trip. The Chicago water is not like what we have here. It is a reminiscence of an incident. A guide on a certain occasion was showing a party of us around the city of Washington. It was a warm day and becoming thirsty I asked if he knew where I could get a drink of good water. "Ah," he said, "from around Maine." I got the water and felt proud of old Maine and her prohibitory law, yet some infernal sounders would have us believe that our good state has any a bad reputation.

Mr. Ricker was just as positive as the Southern belle that the man named at the head of the Government was Colonel Roosevelt and he too felt certain that with him as leader California, Arizona, New Mexico and even Texas, as would vote for him on account of the dissatisfaction of the people of those states with the lamentable Mexican policy of the administration.

It seemed one while that the Roosevelt tide was rapidly rising and threatened to sweep all before it. It must have had a great influence in upsetting the balance of the "Old Guard" and this contributed to the nomination of Judge Hughes, a man they did not really want.

At the start, there was a disposition, outside of the stand-pat element, to take a candidate acceptable to Colonel Roosevelt, and it was generally believed that he would favor Hughes if nominated. It was therefore a great surprise, when the press afterwards expressed the opinion that Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts would be acceptable to him. The Republicans could not agree to this. Harry Bigelow, Editor of the Portland Press afterwards expressed the opinion that had it come at the opportune time Mr. Lodge would have been nominated, but I do not think so. Senator Lodge had no special elements of strength besides Mr. Roosevelt's support. Particularly in the doubtful states, he had never been identified with the Progressives, and was very much weaker than Burton or Harding or even Senator Weeks. The convention could not nominate with any hope of success, simply a personal matter. The Progressives for Colonel Roosevelt.

The Progressives for Colonel Roosevelt. The last man on their own motion they would have selected as their candidate for President. It was then felt that out of Roosevelt really considered him out of the race, and the tide for Hughes having risen so high, and the feeling that he would if nominated be supported by the Colonel, after two ballots on Friday showing Hughes far in the lead, indications pointed to a general break for him on the first ballot Saturday morning. The Sherman men led in this break and when the ballots were counted it was found that Mr. Hughes had about all of them. Then he did just what his wisest advocates desired and predicted that he would do. He obeyed the call of his party and promptly resigned from the convention and issued a statement of where he stood on the great questions of the day. For the first time in the history of the country since Washington's day, the office was seeking the man.

The efforts of the frenzied crowd had failed to "smoke him out." He waited in silence in a becoming dignity for the call, and when it came acted quickly and his countrymen of his faith saw and heard, with admiration and approval. And they have not the least doubt that when he comes to the Presidency of this republic, he will make his administration illustrious. That in peace or war should it be forced upon us, he will uphold the honor of the nation and see to it that the American property of unoffending Americans abroad and on land and sea.

It took but one ballot to select a candidate for Vice President, Hon. Chas. E. Sherman of Indiana, who has once served as Vice President, received a large

Second, the "Old Guard" had a well defined purpose. A Sherman delegate let the cat out of the bag. "It won't work," he was told. "Your plan if carried out, will imperil the September election in Maine and unless we can have the right man it goes Democratic and Wilson will be elected."

"Do you think so?" "I have no doubt about it," was the answer. "With Hughes we will win a victory in Maine that will show how the country is going."

The plan was this: Harding was selected to be temporary chairman and gave the keynote address. His speech failed how he didn't seem to strike the right chord in the convention.

There was little or no enthusiasm in any of the favorite movements except what was manufactured. That for Sherman of Illinois was all made to order. The "Old Guard" had the votes, it was said, and could not be expected to carry out their plans. Why did they not at first perhaps, but during the last two days of the convention it is doubtful if they could have held their followers together, and there was a general feeling could lay hands on moved out of their seats and began marching around the hall. Other delegations followed. I increasing enthusiasm for Roosevelt, and looked for the men from Maine to rise and join the procession, but they did not stir.

WATERFORD

Where Crooked River flows unseen
Thro' shady nooks and pastures green,
There let me stay awhile and dream,
In Waterford.
Back where roses kiss the dew,
Back where life seems made anew,
Where wild birds sing the whole day through,
In Waterford.
There's perfume in the gentle breeze,
With wild flowers growing to the knees,
With butterflies and humming bees,
In Waterford.
Back to the woods with scented smell,
To shady ways and dreamy dells,
Back to the place I love so well,
In Waterford.
Back to the dim trees' cooling shade,
Back where the wisp his nest has made,
To merry times and music played,
In Waterford.
With brooks disturbed by speckled trout,
The river winding in and out,
The woods with shady paths throughout,
In Waterford.
The schoolhouse basking in the sun,
Where children played when life was young,
Where sparkling waters ever run,
In Waterford.
The streamlet flowing by the mill,
And on the bridge, where all is still,
I listen to the whippoorwill,
In Waterford.
Back where great men lie at rest,
Back where some birds build their nests,
Back to the friends I love the best,
In Waterford.

SOUTH ALBANY.

Will, David and John McAllister are hauling spool strips to the spool mill at the Four Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brown and two children, Jennie and Donald, visited at Mr. Brown's parents', Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Brown's, at East Stoneham, Sunday.

Walter Lord and family went to his camp at the lakes, Thursday for a few weeks' stay. He was taken very ill, Friday, and his mother, Mrs. E. K. Shedd, and husband and brother, Roy Lord, went up in Mr. Shedd's car, but as he was not able to be brought home, Mr. Shedd and his brother came back that night, and Mrs. Shedd remained to care for him. He was able to come home Sunday and is improving in health.

Mrs. C. W. York is improving in health and able to take a few steps without assistance for which her many friends are very glad as she has been very much missed at all social gatherings, where she was always a constant and welcome member until during the long illness which has kept her away and confined at home.

Walter Canwell went to Hunt's Corner, Monday with a load of wool. Farmers who are fortunate enough to own sheep this year will get large returns from them, as wool and mutton are bringing a high price.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Canwell and Mrs. Canwell's mother from Norway, visited at his brother's, Walter Canwell's, Sunday. They made the trip by auto, returning the same day.

Albert McAllister helped Merritt Sawin plant potatoes last Monday. Monday morning brought a bright sun to cheer the farmers, who are backward about spring work and planting, but before noon Old Sol covered up his face and soon after noon was weeping again. We know that there are things hard enough in the world to cause even the sun to weep, but we are told that a smiling face brightens the day. "We should be glad to have Sol smile for a while and we would hide our woes and plant our potatoes. Tuesday and Wednesday the smile came.

H. Noxey of Bridgton was here one day last week and bought some cows of Walter Lord and son of Ernest Brown. Cora Sawin of North Waterford visited her cousin, Merritt Sawin, last week. Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Sawin visited their daughter, Mrs. Hiram Holt, Sunday.

NORTH BUCKFIELD.

Mrs. Bell Smith is entertaining her daughter, Angie, and baby of Massachusetts.

Charles Rowe and Etal Smith were at Lewiston two days last week to attend the Sons of Veterans meeting.

James Bicknell, who had a serious operation last week, is comfortable at this writing. A trained nurse, Mrs. Nutting, is caring for him.

Clifford Warren has been spending a few days with her cousins, Doris and Dorothy Buck.

Earl Holmes, wife and baby, and Mrs. Bell Swallow, were at East Sumner, Sunday and called on Oscar Turner.

Gertrude Warren entertained Beatrice Noxey of Lewiston, Sunday 11th.

Mr. and Mrs. Ren Holmes of South Roylston, Vt., are at his father's for the summer.

Guests at Washington Heald's last week were Hattie Varney of Rumford, Vt., Varney of Sumner, James Varney of Ohio and Ross Varney.

Merton Warren was in Lewiston, the 15th.

Mrs. Florence Warren spent the 15th at Howe's Corner with her sister, Mrs. Symond DeCoster.

Mr. R. J. Warren and Mrs. Hazel Foster were at Lewiston, the 15th.

Wilbur Warren went to Chesterville, last Sunday.

OXFORD

Rev. Harry Paulkingham came Thursday with his bride. We wish them many years of happiness.

The many friends of Miss Akers gave her a miscellaneous shower Friday night.

Rev. B. Williams, pastor of the Methodist church, is winning his way. We have many words of commendation from his people.

The Children's Day concert was enjoyable. The children spoke and sang finely.

Miss Kay, three weeks' vacation. They are in the Methodist Deaconess Hospital in training for nurses.

Rev. Malcolm McKay is gaining quite fast. He walks out and has been to one auto ride.

Mrs. Edith Kemp has a few hats for sale at a very low price.

FORE STREET.

Mrs. E. B. Twitchell and daughter are at Mechanic Falls camp-ground for the week.

The Fore Street Sewing Circle were entertained by Mrs. Alvin Lovejoy, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Al Twitchell attended the Adventist conference at Mechanic Falls, this week.

WEST STONEHAM

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bowers have rented H. M. Adams' bungalow for the summer.

Little Charlie Allen has been quite sick with a bad cold and sore throat the past week.

Josiah Chute is at home on a vacation from Northeast Lovell, where he has been caring for Freeman Andrews for a long time.

Stillman McAllister saw a large buck deer just below H. B. McKen's while on his way to school one day last week.

Carroll McAllister has finished work at Lovell Center and is at home now.

Lucius Jewett still seems very low with little hopes of his recovery.

The prolonged rainy weather is very discouraging to the farmers as there is nothing that can be done on the farm, it is so wet.

Mr. Fred Davis of Lovell visited her brother, Lucius Jewett, who is very ill at John Adams', Friday.

WEST FRYEBURG

Richard Webster of the East Conway street lost one of his work horses while teaming lumber for A. C. Kennet, who has bought the Dr. Gordon lot and is operating on it.

Frank Drew, who has been at the home of his sister, Mrs. Morrison for some days, went recently to Boston, where he has a son living.

R. Walker McKean is employed at night in the electric works at Swan's Falls for the summer.

Walter Hardy has planted five acres of sweet corn on his land near the banks of the Saco River.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hill of South Chatham were calling on relatives and friends in the neighborhood recently.

Harold McKean received a severe injury to his right hand, but was using his potato planter when he put his finger into the machinery to clear an obstruction, when the flesh of the finger was so torn as to expose the bone. Dr. Twaddle dressed it for him promptly, saving further damages. Harold has five acres of sweet corn planted, besides other crops and is also busy with the weather permits looking out for the road.

Planning is greatly hampered by the almost daily and nightly rains though many who planted before the rains were wishing they had waited since some planted fields have been under water.

Mrs. Rose Travis of Wakefield, Mass., who was last summer a guest of her sister, Mrs. J. H. Hardy, died at her home, Monday, June 12, after many weeks of painful illness, aged 63 years. She was the daughter of Alonzo and Hannah (Thurston) Alley of the nearby town of Madison, N. H., where was her home until her marriage with Alvin Philbrick of Wakefield, Mass. Seven children of this marriage still survive. A second marriage to Mr. Travis of the same town, who survives her, also two brothers, Owen Alley of North Conway, N. H., Eugene Alley of Madison and a sister, Mrs. J. H. Hardy, besides several relatives more or less remote in the nearby towns. Mrs. Travis was a woman of a very pleasing personality and made friends readily. She had extensive knowledge of a high order and her love of animals led to her success in exhibiting at the expositions in Boston, where she won blue ribbons on several occasions.

NORTH HARTFORD.

Mr. and Mrs. John Davenport, Mrs. Julia Thorne, Robert Henry, Percy Davenport, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Stetson and son, Sammy and Ethel Farnum, attended the graduation exercises of the Buckfield High school.

Wilma Davenport went to work at Pine Wood the 15th of June.

Very few have their planting done. It is so wet it is impossible to get on their ground and several have given up their pieces entirely and are not going to plant.

Robert Henry is peeling hemlock for Mrs. Julia Thorne.

Charles Stevens jammed his finger very badly one day last week and has been ill in bed ever since. Dr. Stanwood has called and Sunday, Dr. Nile was called.

Mr. and Mrs. Dermont Robbison from Reading visited at O. H. Bowker's, one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Bowker attended Pythian, Sunday, at Rumford Point. Mr. Miller spoke to them.

HARRISON.

Ricker-Horton. A quiet home wedding was solemnized Wednesday afternoon, at four o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin P. Ricker, Elm street, when their youngest daughter, Jessie Isabelle Ricker, was united in marriage to Harold Emory Horton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Horton of Hillside Farm.

The parlor was beautifully decorated with fir, holly and white snap dragons. The bride and groom, unattended, entered the room, to the strains of Lohengrin bridal march, played by Josephine May Daves, a close friend of the bride. The double ring service was used. Rev. J. B. Coy, pastor of the Free Baptist church, officiating. The ring bearer was little Alice Littlefield, niece of the groom.

The bride was becomingly gowned in white embroidered voile, with lace trimmings, while the groom wore a dark blue serge suit.

The wedding gifts were displayed in the music room and were many and beautiful, consisting of silver, cut glass, linen, money, etc.

Pink sweet peas adorned the dining room where refreshments of sandwiches, coffee, cake, sherbet, salted nuts and candies were served.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Charles H. Bar, of Rockland; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Littlefield and daughter, Alice of Mont Clair, N. J.; Caroline E. Shorey, Brunswick; and Josephine M. Daves of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Horton of Hillside Farm and Mary C. Pitts of Harrison.

After a camping trip on Long Lake, at Spring Cottage, Mr. and Mrs. Horton will be at home to their friends at Hillside Farm, Harrison.

Manager J. C. Edgerly of "The Harrison" served one of his finest banquets on Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock, to the graduating class of 1916 of Bridgton Academy and to the faculty. The decorations were garnet and white, with forget-me-nots, the class colors and class flowers with favors of crepe paper caps in garnet and white. Following is the menu:

Blue Points, consommé, princesses, olives, salted nuts, celery, baked Penobscot salmon, game sauce, sliced cucumbers, potato chips, roast turkey cranberry sauce, asparagus tips, new potatoes, string beans, chicken croquets, green peas, lobster salad, ice cream, strawberries, assorted cake, Roquefort, crackers, coffee.

Carr's Shore of Brunswick is the guest of her friend Josephine P. Ricker, of Elm street.

Flax and Game Warden George Cushman of Portland, was recently in town on business.

Hazel Burnham won First Prize and Earl Walker Davis won Third Prize at Bridgton Academy in the Barton Spell-out contest this year, while another of her Harrison boys, Arthur Libby, won the Second Prize in the Junior Debate on Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Elizabeth Wight of North Bridgton, but formerly of this town, passed away at her home there on Monday night, after a lingering illness, with heart trouble. She was a lady much esteemed and leaves many friends and also two daughters and three sons to mourn their loss. Funeral services were held on Friday afternoon, at two o'clock at her late home in North Bridgton, the Rev. C. N. Davis and Mrs. Gertrude Sawyer Coy conducting the services. Interment was in the cemetery on Maple Ridge in the family lot.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kimball of Bridgton Road, have recently visited their sister, Mrs. Nellie Bennett and family in Scarborough.

We understand that a town meeting was called on Saturday afternoon to elect a first selectman to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George E. Tarbox. Joseph Pitts was the man elected by unanimous vote.

Harrison is now beginning to put on its summer dress and quite a few summer visitors have already registered at "Elms Inn" and "The Harrison." The scenery is grand and the fishing good. Why should we not have hundreds of city guests this year, as formerly?

Leon Clark Fuller of Boston was a guest Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. George Flint, High street.

Mrs. Vida Greene is taking a vacation from her work in Green's grocery store, and Lester Caswell is assisting in her place.
